Wow classic mage gold farming guide pdf free online read

Watch out for Guard Mol'dar's charge, as it can catch you off-guard, especially when he is enraged, make sure to not be greedy with the time you use to cast at him while he is running at you.Watch this video, by Timira, in order to see a quick example of how to go about it. They have extremely low health, and can thus be killed by just about any method ( and after using Frost Nova is an especially popular one), just make sure to avoid the patrols while moving around!Watceh this video, by Gracious, for a detailed example on how to proceed. All you need to do is zone in, run / clear to Witch Doctor Zul'rah in the graveyard area, make him hostile by going close to him (without pulling, if you are soloing it at level 60) and proceed to AoE clear the whole place up after taking care of the single mob patrol! Check out this awesome video, by Deluxo, for an example of the solo clear. Because he has Blade of Eternal Darkness, check out this video by Arlaeus for an example on how to farm Zul'Gurub without any special gear.If you are boosting, keep in mind that you will likely need to pull some mobs at the start so that your boostees can go to the waterfall safe spot, as shown in this video. The logic behind the pulls stays the same, regardless!The Scarlet Monastery Armory is a relatively slower place than the Library, and will mostly be avoided unless you are boosting a Warrior for the incredible loot Herod has to offer. If you have any doubts about your ability to finish a pull successfully, just run away and try again! It will be much faster than running back from the graveyard.At this level, the good spots thin out, making competition a huge problem, and you will occasionally find enemies with dangerous ranged / spell attacks in the recommended grinding zones. Your reward for doing this farm is a ton of herbs, especially if you know Herbalism, as there are a lot of herb spawns in the farming area, as well as a shot at the Dire Maul books, such as Nostro's Compendium of Dragon Slaying, that are sometimes lying on the ground in the area you will be farming on.As shown in the video, and because this is a very fast farm, you should add Wildspawn Imp farming to some of your runs, in order to make sure you never have to wait for the dungeon lockout timer.The Gold per Hour of this farm is generally not as good as Zul'Farrak's but it is close, and allows you to farm a lot of useful materials for your server's economy, which can then be converted into valuable potions, flasks, and other crafts.Watch this video, by Zqi, in order to learn how to fully solo Dire Maul East. While doing this takes much longer than the other farms we discussed, it has a major advantage if you have Mining: being able to mine the Rich Thorium Vein at the end of the dungeon can wield great profit, especially if you luck out on some Arcane Crystal and Blue Sapphire/Zul'Gurub is one of the toughest, yet most rewarding farms currently available in WoW Classic. While the haste granted by does not apply to your global cooldown or to your AoE spells, it does apply on your occasional single target spells and during PvE raiding. We did not list many of the spots mentioned in this guide in order to focus on the best ones first and foremost. Taking too long to start pulling will also make some Berserker patrols in the dungeon be in your way later, so beware!Finally, as a bonus, check out this other video, also by Arlaeus to learn how to farm Bloodvine for extra profits while doing Zul'Gurub, often without needing to fight enemies at all.Hope you have enjoyed the ride! If you see any mistake or typo, feel free to write it down in the comments below and we will be sure to update it accordingly!Also, for even more AoE Spots details and tips, check out WoW Classic AoE's exhaustive guide. Area of effect spells gain much less damage from your Spell Damage gear than most spells due to the additional penalty they have, highly reducing their usefulness.Ultimately, you will need a lot of Intellect in order to have enough Mana to finish all the enemies before running out of Mana, and a lot of Stamina in order to survive being hit when using Frost Nova if your timing is not perfect, or the debuffs of some enemies.Once you respect to at level 22, you can safely begin AoE Grinding. Use Evocation and / or your Mana Gems if required.Once enemies are low health, consider using / your Wand to finish them off.You can use the solo rotation in a group as well, for maximum safety. Blackrock Depths is a huge dungeon, with great potential for both group, and solo AoE farming. The main difference, relative to the previous build is the addition of and . Make sure to single out and clear those out first, so that you can farm safely until they respawn.Hearthglen deserves a special mention for its very high density of relatively high-level humanoid melee NPCs, who drop silver, green items, and cloth, among other useful items, making it a good option for gold farming at maximum level, when not contested.The Stockade should be the first dungeon you can seriously consider AoE Grinding on. They are also high level enough that you can easily grind on them until level 60.You can watch this video, by dodoni's group, where they quickly AoE clear most of the dungeon up to the Ogre area, gaining a ton of experience in the process. This area has a lot of tightly packed/patrolling melee enemies, which can all be grouped up and AoE'd down, as you can see in this video, by Pbj TheMage.Horde players can also constantly spawn elites to AoE down by starting What Is Going On?, which will trigger a huge influx of high-level Elite dwarves on the quest giver's location. Look at this full clear video, by MMOKoz for an idea of how to clear with an appropriately leveled group.At level 60, you can still come back to the Cathedral, and do everything in a single pull if you feel ballsy enough. Once you reach the end of the path, reset the dungeon and go again!Here's a video of Ictusks power leveling people at 60 in Razorfen Kraul, but the pathway is similar for lower level groups trying to make their way through.You will typically start your Scarlet Monastery farming with the Graveyard area, which requires the lowest level to be cleared and has a lot of tightly clumped enemies.Because of the relatively small size of the dungeon, it is quite possible that you will hit the instance cap limit. It will be faster to recover that way than to die and have to run back!Keep yourself buffed with , or (later) and at all times.Use your mount and / or Wand to quickly aggro nearby packs of melee enemies and run around until they start dealing significant damage to you or become tightly packed. To prevent this, try and do a Library run every in between every 3 Graveyard runs, which will take longer and allow the timer to reset.You can see Graveyard being done by Mages here, by TITAN.The Scarlet Monastery Library area will be your next step, and you will mostly be fighting humanoid enemies here.Since this is a longer dungeon, you will never run into the instance limit if you are clearing it at an appropriate level, and, as a bonus, the last boss drops some of the best gear available for leveling Mages: Arcanist Doan drops Illusinary Rod and Hypnotic Blade, which you can combine with Orb of the Forgotten Seer, from the Graveyard. It is also quite likely you will be able to use it at low health % when finishing AoE pulls.Beast Slaying grants a nice damage buff against many of the best targets for AoE farming, especially Zulian Crocolisk, which are the best enemy to kill at 60, currently.Finally, Regeneration will grant you a small amount of extra health during a pull, which is also useful on pulls where you would barely survive, otherwise.Because AoE Grinding is focused on farming the same spot over and over, it pairs poorly with the typical Herbalism / Mining path, as you will not be traveling Azeroth and encountering many spots to gather from.Instead, Tailoring and Enchanting are the best options, in order to create your own bags and make some extra money from the huge amount of cloth you will be AoE farming, and enchanting allows you to disenchant the many greens you will find along the way.The exception to this rule is if you plan to heavily farm Maraudon or Dire Maul East at level 60, in which case leveling Herbalism (and Mining for Mithril Ore in Maraudon) is extremely useful, as you can gather Ghost Mushroom in Maraudon and a ton of Gromsblood / Dreamfoil and other herbs in Dire Maul East, making your gold returns even higher!This is the fastest single target leveling talent build up to level 22 and takes advantage of 's incredible damage potential to quickly two / three-shot most enemies you will encounter.Once you finally hit level 22, you will finally be able to respect to what will be your end game talent progression as an AoE Grinding Mage.You respect at level 22 because, at that point, you can finally get the maxed out , which is essential in order for the rotation to be performed efficiently and for large packs of enemies to die before your Mana pool runs out. Check out this video, by solipsist01, for an example. From then on you just get all of the AoE enhancing talents, while avoiding the single target focused ones, in a pretty straightforward fashion.If you want to keep AoE Grinding as a Frost Mage in WoW Classic's end game, this is the recommended build. Because the Gordok Hound are very fast moving and hard hitting, you will need to be very careful with keeping them under control, as otherwise a quick death is all but guaranteed. Be wary of the lockout timer when doing this farm repeatedly!Your objective with this farm is to drop down at the start of the dungeon, reaching the open area containing your Whip Lasher targets almost instantly. You can force even very large groups of spread out enemies to pack up tightly by using after pulling but keep in mind its long cooldown.Use Frost Nova and move away, or use Blink, to get far enough away from enemies that you can barely hit them with the edge of your maximum range . In order to grind here as efficiently as possible, you should simply head to this zone immediately and begin pulling and grinding through. Escape Artist is also occasionally useful when things go wrong.Troll is the best race for AoE Grinding on Horde. These weapons will serve you well before you do Zul'Farrak.You can see a Library AoE pull example here, by DannyGaminGnC. Please see our separate guide for AoE grinding in Outlands!Frost Mage AoE Grinding in Burning Crusade ClassicAbout the AuthorWoah is a World of Warcraft veteran, having played since Vanilla, all the way until the current expansion, on multiple characters, guilds, servers and classes. It contains a huge number of valuable, tightly packed large groups of humanoid enemies who drop silver and Wool Cloth, which sells for quite a bit.Because the dungeon is located in Stormwind City, it will be much easier to access it as an Alliance player. We will be listing the maximum DPS rotation below, which is considerably riskier but can well worth using in a coordinated group where other players can help you keep enemies under control.Keep yourself buffed with , or (later) and at all times.Wait for your group to gather enemies, help if needed.Use Frost Nova and move away from enemies, followed by and for massive burst damage.Kite enemies while using and until everything dies.Intellect > Stamina > Spirit > Other StatsWhile the AoE Grinding Mage's stat priority might look simple, Intellect and Stamina are by far your most important stats. Try to enter from the Stormwind Harbor side in that case!Razorfen Kraul is a great dungeon to AoE Grind, specifically its Agam'ar / Raging Agam'ar infested area, which is usually jumped down to after dealing with the final boss, Charлга Razorflank for the escort quest present there. While one of the fastest ways to level in WoW Classic early on involved killing the weak, fast respawning mobs of The Lyceum part of the dungeon (commonly named a Torch Run), these mobs have since been hotfixed to not grant nearly as much experience anymore, making this method no longer viable.Thus, it will be ideal to focus on farming the initial parts of the dungeon, The Jail area. The mobs near the start of the dungeon lack any sort of dangerous abilities and are as tightly packed as they come, making them a natural target for Mages. If you cannot do it this way, don't worry! Doing it in several small pulls is also completely fine, and you will rapidly reach the instance lockout limit if you clear all of your runs in a single pull, anyway.Make sure to check Quissy's great Gold Farming Scarlet Monastery guide too!While you can also do it solo, as shown by Ebbnflow, Zul'Farrak's graveyard is also amazing in a group while leveling up, and at 60 while solo. Take note that, while they are using a raid group to farm in the video, that is no longer a viable strategy for speed leveling because of the heavy XP penalty when in a raid group. Keeping your Mana high is also made more difficult because there are no low level caster mobs that you can pull for the free Mana gain of , which is of great use in dungeons such as Maraudon.You can watch this video, by Jokerd in order to learn which enemies to focus on, and how to pull and round them up. But it is also possible to sneak into Stormwind and farm it as a Horde player, as shown by Naowh and his group here. Doing it in a group is very similar, make sure to only open / pull as many enemies as you can deal with!You should also check this video, by Gracious, which showcases what a full run before reset would look like, with some insane pulls and no boring usage!With Season of Mastery, this run gives almost no gold, so it's only worth it if you can handle it while leveling for the experience. works well with the close range, high damage AoE of the plus combo, which will deal a huge amount of damage, even to Elite mobs! , on the other hand, turns low-level caster enemies, which you will generally find on your farming spots, into Mana batteries for you, as you will naturally resist most of their spells due to being much higher level.If you are focused on farming spots where enemies are purely physical (such as Dire Maul's North and East wings), drop a point in and get , instead!Always buy new ranks of your buffs: , , and .Get every new rank of your main damage spells: up to level 22 and afterwards for single target situations, , , and for AoE Grinding.Buy only the first ranks of your utility spells, in the few cases there are any extra ranks: Frost Nova, Blink, Evocation, among others.Get all of your teleports, portals, conjure water (possibly food as well) and mana gem spells, you will be making good use of them!At any point during this rotation if things start going wrong and you don't have Icy Veins / to recover, try to run away and drop aggro. We hope you have enjoyed reading through all of the information in page and look forward to seeing you playing Mage in Classic Azeroth! Remember to never die if you can avoid it. Use Icy Veins if some resist and instantly Frost Nova again to recover.Cast twice, moving away a little bit after the first one ends in order to ensure enemies are far enough away from you that they will be fully hit by the second cast.Hit enemies with when they are close, and kite them until Frost Nova is ready again, at which point you should repeat the rotation from point 3. By abandoning and picking up the quest again, you can trigger more Elites to spawn, thus providing an alternative method to resetting the dungeon.Finally, at level 60, once you have Shadowforge Key, Blackrock Depths is a great place to solo farm, as displayed by Gracious on this video, the difficulty is considerably higher than the Zul'Farrak farm, but you will also be getting higher level drops, which could make it worth your time, depending on your skill level and gear.The final and highest level dungeon where it is still possible/worthwhile to pull a massive amount of enemies to AoE Grind on is Lower Blackrock Spire. While will certainly not be quite as effective in holding threat anymore on your runs due to its threat nerf hotfix, you should not really need a Warrior to hold aggro on these enemies, as long as Frost Nova and are coordinated with your group.Killing Gordok Hound, Carrion Swarmer and Guard Mol'dar in Dire Maul North's starting area allows you to farm a lot of vendor trash quickly. It is tough because the mobs you will be killing have way more hitpoints than any of the other farms we recommend, which makes Mana management a critical part and encourages, although it is not mandatory by any means, the use of the rare Blade of Eternal Darkness. It can still be farmed, but expect tougher enemies than what you faced before!Check this video, by Vecnu, which showcases a run through Armory with a spell caster heavy composition.Last, but decidedly not least, Scarlet Monastery Cathedral is your final destination within Scarlet Monastery, and also by far the most profitable place to farm at.This dungeon has a lot of tightly packed enemies and a ton of space for kiting, which makes it one of the very best Mage grinding spots. Currently playing WoW Classic and challenging Azeroth again from the beginning, in Gehemas EU Horde.Gnome is the best overall race for AoE Grinding in WoW Classic due to Expansive Mind, which allows you to have a larger Mana pool, which is essential in order to ensure that you have enough Mana to finish a pull, as leaving enemies low health does not count as a success if you die or have to reset in the process. Mages are the fastest levelers in World of Warcraft Classic under optimal conditions, as displayed on Jokerd's fantastic run to world first in only about 4 days! While doing it with this level of speed requires you to be mostly uncontested through most of the content, as you require a high number of enemies and respawns in order to make AoE Grinding worthwhile, it is still a fantastic technique that you can employ at maximum level in order to farm gold quickly as well.It is also possible to apply the techniques we present here to AoE Grind through dungeons, usually in a group, but for some dungeons such as Maraudon, you can actually solo some areas! If you are interested in other content for Mages, check out: Looking for AoE Grinding information for Burning Crusade Classic instead of Classic? We recommend the following spots:There are still a few Alliance / Horde only spots in this level range, but most will be usable by members of both factions from here on out, so beware! Being contested (be it by members of your own faction, or by enemy players) will heavily reduce your XP / Hour.At this level, the pulls start becoming more dangerous, but you will also finally have Ice Barrier and your 60% speed mount to help deal with it.
